

Subscribe

Advertisement

Close

Cumberland

Search ongoing for N.J. State Police trooper missing for 3 days

Published: Mar. 22, 2023, 12:03 p.m.

704
shares

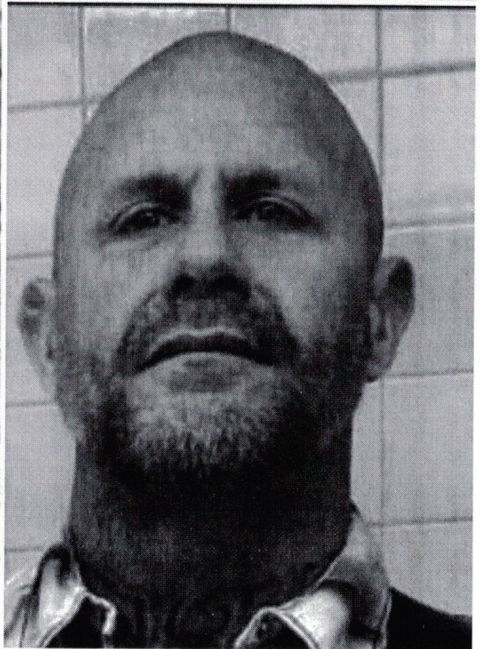

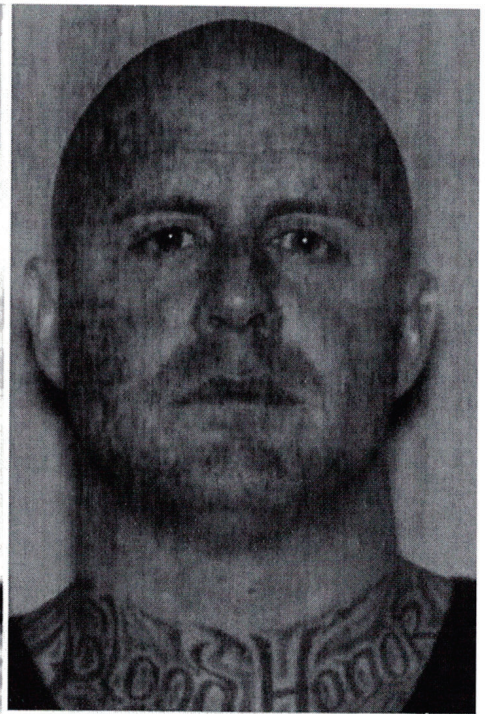

NEW!

By Jeff Goldman | NJ Advance Media for NJ.com

A New Jersey State Police trooper who was being treated at a medical facility in Pennsylvania went missing on Sunday evening.

Jason Dare was seen walking away from the building in Media, Pennsylvania shortly before 7 p.m and is considered endangered, State Police said.

Dare, 46, of Cumberland County, was wearing a black Carhart jacket, black hooded sweatshirt, blue jeans, and eyeglasses, State Police said. He is 6-foot and about 180 pounds with tattoos on his neck, arms, and hands.

Jason Dare, a 46-year-old state trooper from Vineland, has been missing since Sunday evening. New Jersey State Police Dare has been a State Police employee since 2004, according to the state pension database. He is a Vineland resident, according to property records.

Pennsylvania State Police are also involved in the search for Dare. According to 6abc.com, a large search for Dare is ongoing in Delaware County, Pennsylvania on Wednesday.

Anyone with information is asked to call New Jersey State Police at 609-963-6993. Anonymous tips are welcome.

Our journalism needs your support. Please subscribe today to NJ.com.